Correspondence of The Sun. Yоконама, Japan, Jan. 21, 1873.-A little over a year ago the Japanese Government. In pursuance of the progressive policy which it s lately adopted, informed the United States Government of its desire to secure the services of some American lawver of eminent acquire-ments, thoroughly acquainted with the laws of the Western nations, as an adviser on international law. It appears that the delicate task of selecting such a man as was required fell upon Secretary Fish, who in the fulfillment of the re-sponsible trust confided to him SAW FIT TO SELECT ONE OF HIS OWN CLERKS or the position, an obscure person of the name f E. Peshine Smith, who was forthwith foisted ipon our unsuspecting Japanese authorities at in enormous salary as a bright and shining light an enormous salary as a bright and shining light of legal crudition.

In due time Mr. E. Peshine Smith made his appearance here, and professedly entered on the discharge of his official duties, though the impression has gained currency that the Japanese Government is not entirely delighted with the acquisition it has gained in Secretary Fish's protégé; while it is certain that the American residents here do not feel particularly proud of their countryman who has been delegated as the representative of the legal profession in the United States. Mr. Smith, since he has been here, has principally distinguished himself by parading the streets dressed in Japanese cestume topped off with a plug hat, and by the remarkable capacity he has manifested for imbibing whiskey of good, bad or indifferent quality as the case might be.

ONE OF THE MOST CURIOUS SCENES in which Mr. E. Peshine Smith has taken part

ONE OF THE MOST CURIOUS SCENES
In which Mr. E. Peshine Smith has taken part since his arrival here occured on the 11th inst.
in the United States Consular Court, before Consul C. O. Shepard. The first section of the Rules and Consular Regulations of the United States in Japan requires that every American ritizen in Japan shall make application to be spreadty of $10 for a failure to comply with this requirement. Mr. E. Peshine Smith had omitted to register, and he was brought before the court coanswer for his neglect.

requirement. Mr. E. Peshine Smith had omitted to register, and he was brought before the court to answer for his neglect.

Upon being asked if he had any excuse to offer for failing to comply with the requirements of the Court as directed by the American Minister, the adviser on international law proceeded to make an apolocy for appearing as his own to the court of t nim, and asking why any person imagined him to be a citizen of the United States?

E. PESHINE SMITH DENIES HIS NATIONALITY.

This remarkable inquiry rather startled the Court, and Mr. Smith was asked if he really denied being an American citizen, to which he very coolly answered that he did, whereupon the following dialogue ensued:

The Consul—Probably it will be well for the Dourt to ask you a few questions. It may simplify matters. Where were you born, Mr. Smith?

Mr. Smith (urbanely)—I don't remember. As near as I now can recollect, I was two or three years oid before I recollected anything. I may nave been born in Nova Scotia, or on the wrong slide of the Niazara river.

Q.—Where did your parents reside from your first remembrance, Mr. Smith? A. (Meditative-ty).—I think, sir, they resided in the State of New York.

Q.—Did you ever hear or know of their residing any where else except in that State? A. (promptly).—I am not able to say that I ever did. Q.—I asked if you had ever heard of their residing any where else. I may ask what is your belief in regard to that? A.—My belief, your Honor? Well, my mother is an old lady, ieventy-six years of age. I have heard statements from her that when she was a young girl not quite eighteen years old she had a child, whom she supposes to be me. But I think, really, your Honor, that's merely hearsay evidence, and she she idl destify.

Q.—Did you ever vote in the United States?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Do you know that every person voting in the U. S. A. is required to be a citizen of the U. S.? A.—I have an impression that is so—legaliyso.

Q.—The Cour' has a very decided impression to the U. S. P. The Cour' has a very decided impression. E. PESHINE SMITH DENIES HIS NATIONALITY.

ly so.

Q.—The Cour* has a very decided impression in regard to that. In fact, the Court will be obliged to accept that as proof you were known at that time as a citizen of the U.S.A. I have sufficient confidence in the vigilance of the officers of the U.S.A. to think they would not have cers of the U.S. A. to think they would not have allowed you to vote excepting you were a citizen. A.—I beg your Honor's pardon. They may have honestly supposed me to be a citizen, or I might have been assumed to be a citizen, when I had no right to vote. If so I think that your Honor should suppose I have been already adequately punished there for the offence.

Q.—It is hardly for the Court to go se far as to imagine that. A.—Does your Honor mean to hold judicially that because I admit that I have voted in the U.S.—whether rightfully or wrong-tully—you could hold that I had a right to voted in the U. S.—whether rightfully or wrongfully—you could hold that I had a right to have voted in the U. S.?

The Consul—The Court decides that you are supposed innocent until you have been proved guilty, and it is supposed you would not do a thing which was illegal. As you confess yourself to have voted, the Court must hold you are a citizen of the United States.
Mr. Smith—If I were a citizen I might be supposed to have known something of the law of the United States; but being, as I am,
ONLY A POOR, IGNORANT, BEATHEN JAPANESE.

the United States; but being, as I am,
ONLY A POOR, IGNORANT, BEATHEN JAPANESE,
I don't know why any such knowledge should be imputed to me. It's a pretty difficult question to settle. I once had a friend who was a lawyer; he was what the British call a crown lawyer; he was legal adviser to the State Department of the United States, and what notions of American law I've got at all I got from him.
Q.—What was his name, Mr. Smith? A.—His name was Smith.
Q.—E. Peshine Smith?

American law I've got at all I got from him.
Q.—What was his name, Mr. Smith? A.—His name was Smith.
Q.—E. Peshine Smith? A.—I think so; but as your Honor, being yourself a citizen of the U.S. A., must be aware, there are two or three Smiths in the United States. It doesn't follow because two persons are named Smith, or even E. Peshine Smith, that they are the same person. The Consul—Possibly not.

Mr. Smith—I only refer to this gentleman for such notions of American law as I've got, and perhaps I may have occasion to refer further to him hereafter. He was then thought to be a tolerably respectable person, but recently I have had reason to believe that he is not by any means. He is said to have been a man of very dissipated habits, of no social standing—in all ways a pretty poor creature. Nevertheless, that wasn't found our then, when I knew him. I happen to know, too, since I have been in the employment of the Government of Japan, that the President of the United States has spoken in quite respectful terms of him.

I in answer to further questions from the Court Smith admitted that he had formerly claimed to be a cliizen of the United States, but that on Nov. I, 1871, he became a naturalized citizen of Japan, in San Francisco, the change in his nationality having been effected by authority of the Japanese Consul in San Francisco, but he afterward declined to say that the Consul of Japan had any right to naturalize him, and also said that he did not think he had been naturalized that when he came to this country he brought with him a circular of introduction addressed to all Ministers and all Consuls of the United States giving them the views of the Foreign Office at Washington as to what it was which constituted a circumstances he ceased to be practically a citizen and entitled to protection. Mr. Smith said that a person who goes into the service of a foreign Government by that fact ceases to have any right to claim protection of the United States. Here and throng-you his argument, Mr. E. Peshine Smith constan misdemeanor, and on conviction in any court of the U.S. having jurisdiction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000, and by imprisonment during a term not less than six months nor exceeding three

Now if your Honor pleases, why don't the U.
S. A., instead of prosecuting me for this $10, ask for this $5,000? and why don't they propose to put me into your jall, which I believe is somewhere 4n your back vard out there, for not less than six months and not more than three years? Really it would be something creditable if that was done.

Really it would be something the was done.

The Consul—I think if you give attention to the wording of the act you will find it says that if this is done without the authority or permission of the Government. Have you not the authority or permission of the Government of the U.S.A. to reside in Japan and act as attorney and counsellor?

U.S. A. to reside in Japan and act as attorney and counsellor?

Mr. Smith—I do not know how I could prove that, if I am put on my defence here.
Q.—The Court does not ask you to prove it. Is it not a fact within your own knowledge? A.—One moment. It is a principle of law in the U.S. that a man is not compellable to bear witness against himself in criminal cases. Your Honor must look upon this as if I was a defendant, and I was sued by the U.S. The question is, how I am to prove that. Your Honor may have heard something about this .hing from Mr. De Long. The Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary may possibly have in his possession some paper which would prove such permission; but it is quite certain I cannot compel him in any way, nor can your Honor compel him to produce a document which is one of the instructions addressed to him by the U.S.

The Consul—It is within the knowledge of the Court such a paper does exist, Mr. Smith, the Present.

E. PESHINE SMITH INSISTS THAT HE IS

The Consul—It is unnecessary to discuss that. It is irrelevant to what is before the court at present.

E. PESHINE SMITH INSISTS THAT HE IS A Mr. Smith then proceeded to argue at great length that he was not a citizen of the United States but "a poor Japanese young man," that he was entitled to no protection from the former Government, and that if the Emperor of Japan should cut his head off the people of the United States would be the last people in the world who would have a right to object to it. He also maintained that the Minister or Consuls had no right to make the regulations which he was charged with violating. And he asserted positively that the State Department in Washington had disappreved of the particular clause of the Consular Regulations obliging registration.

Consul Shepard, who, in the course of the examination had given the windy expounder of international law a good many telling thrusts, terminated the proceedings by deciding that Mr. E. Peshine Smith was an American citizen in spite of his protestations to the contrary, but reserved the decision of the Court in regard to the commission of the offence charged until he could communicate with the Minister of the United States in relation to the assertion made by Smith that the rule requiring registration had been disapproved of by the State Department in Washington. Yesterday the matter was brought up again, when Consul Shepard read A LETTER FROM MINISTER DE LONG, who said that the statement of Smith in regard to the disapproval of the particular section of the Consular Court Regulations, requiring American citizens to register, was "wholly untrue." and should receive no credit. At the same time Mr. De Long said that although it was unnecessary to enter into any argument to show that a man may not shift his allegiance from one power to another with the same suddenness and unceremoniousness with which he might change his coat, he was enabled to advise the Consul, on the authority of the Minister of Foreign Affairs for this empire, that Japan ha

FOSTER STILL IN SUSPENSE.

The Sheriff and His Subordinates Relieved-Yesterday in the Tombs.
There were animated faces in the Sheriff's office yesterday. Under Sheriff Joel O. Stevens was happy, and his countenance indi-cated relief from a suspense nearly equal to that of the reprieved Foster. Deputies Seebacher and Hanbury have had two watches, and it was their turn for the last witch last night. They were elated by the Governor's order, and warmly congratulated Foster. To a Sun reporter yesterday Mr. Stevens said, "I have no further news. The Governor's formal order reached me to-day, but not until I had read a copy of it in The Sun. The Governor's telegraphic despatch was brought to my house after 1 o'clock on Wednesday morning, but The Sun had it four hours before I did. Indeed i go to The Sun for my nows, and can't give you any."

Foster occupied his accustomed seat behind the stove yesterday, with his wife. Visitors thronged the Tombs to offer their congratulations. He received them without manifesting much feeling. The Sheriff's guard is removed, and the prisoner is restored to his former liberties in the prison.

Abelish the Pay Department of the Army.

Abolish the Pay Department of the Army. To the Editor of The Sun.

Sir: Can you not lend your powerful assistance toward abolishing the Pay Depart-ment of the army? The army paymaster is of ment of the army? The army paymaster is of little use to the soldiers –at least to those stationed in this locality. This command landed here on the 15th of last November, and since that time the men have been paid but once, and that payment was only to the 30th of October 1872. The money was brought by Gen. Hardee Inspector-General. We have not seen a paymaster since we have been here, and all this time we know that the army regulations imperatively require troops to be paid at least once in two months. It cannot be said that the two paymasters in New Orleans have a great deal to do, as there are not more than three full regiments in this department to pay altogether. The fact is, they don't like to come down from New Orleans, so they postpone the payments as long as possible. The troops at Tortugas are in the same situation with us, and have not seen a paymaster since they went there.

If the Government would give these paymasters more work to do they would be more considerate. Why not make them pay the pensions, instead of having an army of pension agents to do the work which the paymasters have ample time and facilities to do? There is no earthly reason why the paymasters should not do both duties; but if they cannot pay the troops—a work for which they are employed—wipe them out, and let the captains of companies pay their own men.

London in Darkness.

From the Pall Mall Gasette, Feb. 19.

It may be said with almost literal truth that Londoners have not seen daylight this week. To-day, however, the darkness has been even worse than on Monday and Tuesday. Un to moon it was impossible to dispense with gas and candles. On the south side of the Thannes the darkness was excessive. The railway stations were lighted up exactly as at night. There has been no great amount of for, and traffic has not help seriously interfered with in the streets, on the 1'silways, or on the river.
